

EUREKA STOCKADE 170

170TH ANNIVERSARY | BALLAARAT

We respectfully acknowledge the Wadawurrung People as the Traditional Owners of the land on which the Eureka Stockade took place. We pay our respects to Elders past and present and acknowledge their continuing connections to Country and Culture.

While the Eureka Stockade led to male suffrage in 1858, and informed the social reforms that followed, it was over 100 years until Australia's First Nations People were able to exercise the right to vote.

WELCOME

2024 marks 170 years since the attack by government forces on protesting miners barricaded at the Eureka Stockade.

The Eureka Stockade resides deep in the hearts of Ballarat's people. It defines our city and the values we cherish. Eureka is also an enduring foundation story of Australian democracy. As a story of collective solidarity in the face of oppression, it continues to inspire and engage people from across all reaches of society.

At commemorative events across our community, we will honour those involved in the Eureka Rebellion. Embodying the Eureka Spirit, our city will come alive with a diverse community program of activities including talks, tours, performances and more. Get involved and join in the celebration across Ballarat and beyond.

PERFORMANCES

THE BALLARAT POETESS - MEGAN J RIEDL X ELLEN YOUNG

In an impossible collaboration spanning 175 years, Megan J Riedl contemplates what it means to be the voice of a city. Emerging from the ashes of her predecessor Ellen Young's gold-rush era corset and crinoline, Megan explores how impactful moments of social change can be marked by the carefully crafted voices of difficult women.

In a work-in-progress showing of her debut full length solo performance, Megan ponders the power of the poetic voice – in finding resting places, in the cathartic nature of capturing the here & now, and in the dichotomy of searing truth-telling wrapped up in euphonic language.

A Megan J Riedl production presented in partnership with the Eureka Centre.

THE FOUND IRISH WOMEN OF EUREKA

In May this year, the Eureka Centre presented a discussion called 'The Lost Irish Women of Eureka,' which launched a new Public Record Office Victoria funded project led by the Ballarat and District Irish Association (BDIA). This event marks the completion of the research part of the project. Way Back When historian Lucy Bracey will share her research and film-maker Erin McCuskey will discuss her new film, drawing on the compelling stories uncovered throughout the project.

As a result, the Federation University Cultural Collections holds many interesting historical examples of ephemera relating to the Eureka Stockade, documenting how it was commemorated over the past 170 years. Items include newspaper articles from 1923 to the present day, photographs of the replica Stockade and the Eureka 'Sail' in the Eureka Stockade Memorial Gardens, commemorative menus and placemats, and a program from the 100TH anniversary celebrations. WITNESSING EUREKA: THE SKETCHES OF CHARLES ALPHONSE DOUDIET

The unrest that led to the Eureka Rebellion on 3 December 1854 has captured the imagination of artists for 170 years. A notable witness to the events was Swiss-born Canadian digger Charles Alphonse Doudiet, who kept a sketchbook of his journey from Montreal to the Ballarat goldfields. In watercolour and ink, Doudiet observed and recorded a series of events culminating in diggers clashing with government forces in protest of exorbitant mining licence fees. Doudiet's descendants discovered his sketchbook in an attic in 1996, and the Art Gallery of Ballarat undertook a large fundraising campaign to purchase the folio at auction. To mark the 170th anniversary of the Eureka Rebellion, the Gallery will display all fifteen watercolours by Doudiet. These incredibly fragile and rarely seen works will be displayed within the Gallery Collection, along with works by contemporary artists who continue to be captivated by the subject matter of democracy and the symbolism of the Southern Cross.

AFTER EUREKA: THE STUDIES FOR MANIFESTATION - ANTHONY WHITE

Paris-based Australian artist Anthony White's exhibition features energetic highly key coloured explorations made in response to Sidney Nolan's 1965 Eureka Stockade mural. Painted in France during a period marked by widespread public protests, these works continue the artist's wider thinking around the painterly gesture as a form of dissent, as well as an act of civil disobedience. These studies for a series of paintings called 'Manifestation' were completed for a National Library of Australia 2020 Creative Arts Fellowship.

Anthony White's solo exhibitions include 'Mobilising Material' at The Mark Rothko Art Centre in Latvia in 2023. His work has been included in over 50 group exhibitions internationally, as well as major Australian art prizes. Anthony White is represented by Lennox St. Gallery.

EXHIBITIONS

FAITH ON THE GOLDFIELDS

This exhibition tells of Faith, Gold, and the early pioneer priests of Western Victoria. The formation of the Catholic Diocese of Ballarat on 30 March 1874, and the installation of the first Bishop of Ballarat on 17 May 1874, is a significant chapter in the history of the Catholic community. From the early 1830s, thousands of Catholic migrants arrived in Port Phillip Bay. Over the following decades, many settled in western Victoria in search of gold and to start a new life. Priests from Ireland and other parts of the world were encouraged to migrate for the Melbourne mission. In recognition of the Diocese's 150TH anniversary, this display highlights the lives of these pioneer priests, including Fr. Patrick Smyth, who was associated with the events surrounding the Eureka Stockade. The display further examines the first bishops who worked and travelled in Ballarat and western Victoria between 1850-1874.

THE BUILDING OF BALLARAT: THE ESTABLISHMENT OF FREEMASONRY ON THE GOLDFIELDS

Freemasons were amongst the first free settlers in the colony of Victoria. Many moved to Ballarat and worked as miners on the goldfields; others worked as publicans, stonemasons, lawyers, and bankers. Freemasons, including Ballarat Reform League Secretary, John Humffray, were active in agitating for miners' rights and wider democratic reform. By the early 1850s, various Lodges were established, including the 'Victoria Lodge of Instructions', which was formed on 25 June 1854, only months before the Eureka Stockade. The support of these early Freemasons during this time resulted in constructing some of the finest buildings in Ballarat and establishing various charities and institutions. In recognition of this important history, the Ballarat Masonic Centre will display some of its earliest records, documents, and photographs dating from the 1850s onwards. Tours of the Lodge rooms will also be available during this time.
